

AUGUST 12
TES2013
CREATIVITY & LEARNING
CALSTeaching Enhancement Symposium

Request for Proposals

Due: April 26, 2013

The 2013 CALS Teaching Enhancement Symposium will be held Monday, August 12, 2013. The Teaching Resource Center (TRC) and the CALS Dean's Office are working to build a program that will help you advance your teaching. This year, we are soliciting proposals from CALS faculty for presentations that will be a part of the program that align with this year's theme of "Creativity & Learning" or one of the six Teaching Resource Center programmatic themes:

- Distance Education
- Technology Enhanced Instruction
- Teaching Effectiveness & Innovation
- Outcomes & Assessment
- Advising & Mentoring
- Curriculum Development

Do you have expertise related to teaching and learning that can benefit your peers? Have you tried an innovative teaching approach that other instructors may find useful? Are you using a new educational technology that you would like to share with your colleagues? Have you found ways to motivate and engage your students? Do you have a unique approach to advising (undergrad or grad) that helps keep your students on track? If you answered yes, then you have something worth sharing.

Presentations can focus on a broad range of topics related to teaching and learning and be delivered in two formats: (a) 75 minute workshop, or (b) poster presentation.

Interested people are invited to respond for this RFP by April 26, 2013 by submitting the following information in a 1 page proposal to Natalie Coers (ncoers@ufl.edu):

1. Title of presentation
2. Programmatic Theme
3. Description of presentation (will be used in the CALS Teaching Symposium program)
4. List of presenters
5. Contact information for lead presenter
6. Preferred format (75 minute workshop or poster)
7. Goals/Objectives of the presentation
